SECTION B

Read the following passage below and answer all questions.

Too Much Cake

In a small town there lived a small boy with his father and mother. The boy liked cakes. He wanted to eat cakes in the morning, all day before he went to bed. His parents bought him cakes every day, he ate and ate. By the age of seven the boy was so fat that he could not run like other children. At school he needed big chairs because he broke all the small ones.

One day his grandmother came to visit. She did not like what she saw. His grandmother thought of a plan. She baked many big cakes and she said he should eat as much as he wanted. So the boy ate and ate. When the sun set, the boy was full but he wanted more cakes. When they were about to go to sleep the boy started crying "what is the matter?" grandmother asked. "My stomach is sore," the boy cried. "Have more cakes..." said grandmother, but the boy could not have more.

That night the boy became sick. From that day on the boy did not want cakes ever again.
